

The 11th Basic Museology Training is an extensive two-week activity that focuses on the different phases of museum work through lectures, workshops, and group interaction. Participants are introduced to the basic foundation of running a museum, taking care of various types of collections, designing exhibitions and developing educational programs. Workshops on collections management, specifically, will challenge participants as they apply newly gained knowledge to their own samples of museum items which they will be required to bring in the training.

This training is offered to beginners in the museum discipline and to old timers as a refresher course.
